The Camping trip

Yuji was a junior high school boy. He was shy and didn't have many friends at school. One summer, his family planned to go camping in a beautiful forest. Yuji was not excited at first because he liked reading books at home. But his father told him to try camping.

When they got to the camping site, Yuji saw a group of kids. They are playing near the river. He wanted to join them but felt too shy. The next morning, Yuji was walking alone, and he saw a girl from the group. She was *setting up a tent, but it is hard for her. Yuji helped her. The girl's name was Mami, and she was very thankful for Yuji's help.

Mami invited Yuji to join a campfire that evening. At first, Yuji was nervous, but he felt happy and was laughing with the new friends. They talked a lot and saw a shooting star.

Mami taught Yuji how to use the *compass and read the map and so on. Yuji learned a lot of new things from her. Yuji *realized that there were so many things outside of his books. From the camping trip, Yuji got new friends. Also, he found a new *confidence in himself. He learned that trying new things is important and he can grow in thanks to it.

Heat System

People use some heat systems to *avoid the cold. In Japan, people use kotatsu to stay warm in winter. A kotatsu is a table with a heater under the table and a blanket over the top. People put their legs under the blanket to stay warm while they sit around the table. Families sit around the table and enjoy eating snacks or playing cards together. It's a *comfortable way to keep warm.

In Canada, *fireplaces are a popular way to keep homes warm in winter. Fireplaces can use different *fuels, like wood, gas, or *electricity. Thanks to them, the room is warm and comfortable. Families like to gather around the fireplace to talk, read, or enjoy the fire. Fireplaces are not just for heat, the room looks nice because of them.
